NHRA Compound Natural Hazards

Project Survey

Natural Hazards Research Australia are seeking participants to complete the Compound Natural Hazards Survey. The survey aims to generate a better understanding of the role of awareness, education and communication initiatives in the context of 'compound natural hazards'. Compound natural hazards are when two or more hazards happen at the same time, or hazards follow each other within a short space of time.

The opinions and experiences of people and communities who have lived through natural hazard events are crucial for helping improve communication and awareness initiatives. This will help everyone better prepare for future hazards.

To complete the survey, please click on the orange button below.
